The Bowery Boy Tells in His Characteristic Way About a Longshoreman Who Wanted to Treat.

WOULDN'T PAY 10 CENTS FOR A CIGAR

How They Handle Those Kind of Fellows on the Reservation Where Chuck and the Gang Hang Out—The Chink Wouldn't be Bulldozed.

No. 1.

[This is the first of a series of stories by Chuck Connors, the Mayor of Chinatown, told in his own way. A new one, illustrated with character photographs posed for by Chuck himself, will be published every week until the series is completed.]

"I wuz tellin' a story de other night to a guy about Chinatown and I says to him:—

"Dere wuz t'ree of us when a chaw butts in.

"What's a chaw?" says he.

"Say, don't you know what a chaw is? He's a mug wid a sponge in his mou' you know; a flannel-mou' bloke. Well, dere wuz t'ree of us when 'd chaw came in, 'n he bangs his toot'pick on de bar. Toot'pick? Why, dat's de iron hook dey use to handle freight and cases. He bangs his toot'pick on de bar 'n says,

"Line up 'n t'row in."

"What's dat? Say, you're a undertaker. Dat's 'n invitation on de reservation. He says, 'Line up 'n t'row in.'

"So we line up, de t'ree of us, 'n says mixed ale. De boss, he says he'd smoke a ham. Aw, say, forget it. I t'ink dey could ring a peter on a mug as slow as you. Smoke a ham? Why, dat's a torch. Don't you know what a torch is? Well, up in de Tenderloin dey call it a cigar. Peter? Oh, run away Chawley, some bloke 'll steal you. Peter? Dat's a drink dey call Mr. Snyder. Say, is you gettin' rats in de nut. Didn't I tell you that a peter is a Mr. Snyder and a Mr. Snyder is a peter, 'n dat's on de dead. Why, it's a knockout, see. Say, do ye t'ink ye kin kid me? You don't know dat a Dago's 'n Italian, 'n a Monk's a Chink. Say, your dead ratty. A Chink, why dat's a Chinee. Well, as I wuz tellin' yer, de boss says he'd smoke a herrin. De mug behind de fence. Aw, say, you give a pain in de neck.

"De mug behind de fence, dat's de barkeep, he twists out four scuttles an' a torch. Say, on de level, ye got me dead leary. What did we tell de mug behind de fence we wanted mixed ale for, ha? Well, den, you ought to know dat a scuttle is a mixed ale, see? De mug behind de fence, he twists out four an' a torch. De chaw he says:

"What do yer want?"

"De mug behind de fence he says:

"Toity, toity."

"What, says de chaw.

"Toity cents, says de mug behind de fence.

"De chaw he counts.

"Wan, two, t'ree, four 'n a torch is folve. Twenty-folve," he says.

"Toity, ye chaw, says de mug behind de fence, reaching fur de convincer.

"Toity hell, says de chaw. 'Folve folves is twenty-folve.'

"De boss he says, 'I smoke ten cent torches ye know.'

"Phat?" says de chaw. 'Tin cents fur a cigar? De ye t'ink I'm a good t'ing?'

"De boss, he says, 'Well, I wanted a good smoke.'

"Good smoke," says de chaw, 'good smoke, is it ye want, an' he dives down into his pocket an' brings out his poipe an' terbaccy an' hands it at him.

"Here," he says, 'take me poipe. Tin cents fur a cigar.'

"Well, what do yer t'ink of dat? 'N he wouldn't put up d' toity. What happened him? Aw, say, forget it. Dere was a collar outside when he landed. Collar? Say, on d' level, you're stuffed. Collar? Why a collar's a cop. Well, dere was a collar outside when he landed, 'n I t'ought he was goin' t' sneeze him. Say, you may be a dead fly mug in de Tenderloin, but you're a peter here. Sneeze him; what the hell does a cop do when he nalls a mug, but sneeze him. But he didn't. What did he do to him? Say, forget it. I bet d' chaw ain't sat down since. Say, I thought dey'd need a rattler to move him. Rattler? You gilly, what do they cart a chaw off in when a collar gets tru beltin' him, generally? A rattler is a patrol; dat's what. Well, I thought dey'd need a rattler to take d' chaw off. D' boss he never turned a hair. He tells us to t'row in wit him, 'n we t'rowed in, an' he lights d' berrin' d' chaw didn't pay for. Say, d' boss is d' levelest bloke on de reservation. Say, he'd stand at a bar 'n blow his brains out wid yer.

"What become of the chaw? Aw, say, what become of last winter's snow? But I know about a week after udder harp, grabbed de Chink be th' neck and soaked him in de features wit his right, and trowed him down, and de two of dem started in soakin' him all over de laundry, when another Chink came out of de back room wit a club. When Dugan seen him he made for him. De Chink seen the size of Dugan, he dropped de club and grabbed a flat full of wet starch out of a pail and soaked Dugan between de lamps wit it. While Dugan wuz tryin' to get it out uv his eyes de two Chinks kept on wallop' him wit de clubs till poor Dugan had to take it on a jump tru de door, and left Clancy to be thrown in a wash tub and drowned wit a half dozen pails of dirty water. Well, say, when Clancy came up out of de laundry his head and kisser wuz all covered wit blue, and he wuz leakin' like a bloke dat had water on de brain. And dere wuz Dugan, up de street, tryin' to get de starch out of his lamps wit his fingers. When Clancy spied Dugan, he walked down to him and grabbed him by de arm. Dugan looked up, and thinkin' Clancy wuz de Chink, de way he wuz covered wit blue, wuz just goin' to go at him again, when Clancy yelled:

"Hold on there, Dugan, hold on; it's me, Clancy."

"Dugan looked up at him, still trying to get the

A THRILLING FEAT.

[WITH PHOTO.]

Frank Newhouse, former trainer of Young Corbett, Benny Yanger, Joe Bernstein, Kid McPartland, Kid Parker, who was a member of the Denver B. B. C., 1900; Colorado Springs B. B. C., 1901; Los Angeles B. B. C., 1902; Portland National B. B. C., 1903; University of Southern California track team, 1903, has a new stunt which he calls the ride of life. It should be called the ride of death.

The ride for life consists of a coast down an incline of 120 feet at the rate of 60 miles an hour to a level 30 feet above ground and then a dive through the air of 75 feet into a tank of water 20x40 feet, 7 feet deep. The feat is pictured on another page.

CANOLE TRIMMED SULLIVAN.

Willie Mack, who was down to fight Martin Canole, of Fall River, before the New Bedford (Mass.) A. C., on March 8, sent word to the management that he could not fill his engagement, and it was put down that it was a case of "cold feet."

John I. Sullivan was secured to take the place of Mack, and he put up a good fight for nearly two rounds, when Canole ripped a fearful left punch into Sullivan's stomach and the Bellows Falls man gave a grunt and it was seen that he was done for. He went the end of the round, and then threw up, claiming that his hand was injured so badly that he could not continue.

Kid Tuths, of Philadelphia, was almost put out by Tommy King, of Fall River, in eight rounds, the latter getting the decision.

KNOCKOUTS IN MILWAUKEE.

Charles Neary, of Milwaukee, secured a decision from Louie Long, of Oakland, Cal., after a bloody battle at Milwaukee, Wis., recently. The fight was Neary's from start to finish; he knocked his man down eleven times, Neary suffering in the sixth round, when he got a bloody nose.

Knockdown business began in the fourth round, when Long's back struck the ground twice. In the fifth Neary hammered Long almost at will, and scored five knockdowns, and in the sixth Long was knocked down four times more.

The evening was a succession of knockouts. Joe Erdt, of Milwaukee, knocked out Billy Dooley, of Milwaukee; Con O'Leary, of Milwaukee, knocked out Jim Woolf, of Chicago, and Walter Larker, of Chicago, hit Billy Langless, of Milwaukee, so often that the referee stopped the fight in the fourth. Young Mahoney, of Racine, knocked out H. Walsh, of Toronto, in five rounds.

DUNLEAVY A CINCH FOR WALSH.

Andy Walsh, of Brooklyn, defeated Jack Dunleavy, of Boston, in the third round of what was to have been a twenty-round fight before the Rover Club, at Pueblo, Col., March 4. Walsh was aggressive from the beginning.

Dunleavy went to the mat in the first round, the bell saving him from being counted out. In the second round he hugged Walsh and protected himself, the bell saving him a second time. In the third round he was knocked down three times and his seconds threw up the sponge.

Dunleavy was completely outclassed and failed to deliver a single punch that was effective. Walsh's kidney blows made him an easy mark.

The first preliminary between Kid Williams and Kid Thomas resulted in a victory for Thomas in the fifth round. Kid Texas, of Pueblo, knocked out Klondike Kid in the first round.

Jim Flynn refereed the preliminaries and Billy Erlau, of Denver, the main bout.

MELLODY LOST ON A FOUL.

Buddy Ryan got the decision over Billy "Honey" Melody, of Boston, in the fifth round in the windup of the Battery D boxing show at Chicago recently. The verdict in Ryan's favor was on a foul, but only saved the Eastern man from losing a clean-cut decision.

Melody was cautioned repeatedly by Referee George Siler for hitting low, and was also warned against butting with his head when coming into a clinch. Either through weakness or bad judgment of distance, Melody disobeyed this rule several times.

In the fifth round after a short mix up he hit Ryan low and sent a right to the jaw almost immediately after the foul blow.

While the fight lasted it was fast and interesting. Melody was not in the best condition. The weight, 130 pounds, was a hardship to him, and the change of climate and drinking water has worked badly with his stomach. His friends knew of this and were surprised to see him put up such a fast fight against Ryan, who was in prime shape.

The fighting was nip and tuck with Ryan holding the shade from the start, but at no time was the fight one-sided or uninteresting.

GRIFF JONES AND LOCKE DRAW.

Griff Jones and Kid Locke fought a six-round battle before the Chester (Pa.) Broadway A. C., on March 7. Locke had the weight but Jones had the speed, and he set a very fast pace in the opening round, which was maintained until the finish. Both boys played for the stomach, and in the infighting Jones had a shade the better of the argument, but used rough tactics and forced Locke through the ropes. He went at the Kid with his head down and received many a vicious up-percut that straightened him up.

The fight became so hot after the first round that the little fellows threw all science to the wind and roughed it, both going to the floor in the mixups or through the ropes. There were no knockdowns, but the fighting

WHEN YOUNG CORBETT —IN SAN FRANCISCO— MEETS JIMMY BRITT

Then There Certainly Will be a Fight Worth Going a Good Long Distance to Look At.

WHAT THE CALIFORNIAN HAS TO SAY ABOUT IT.

The Pride of 'Frisco Thinks It is a Cinch for Him to Get the Big End of the Purse and He is Full of Confidence.

And now, on the eve of the Corbett-Britt fight in San Francisco, there is plenty of speculation as to the outcome.

If you ask Harry Tuttle, Young Corbett's capable trainer, he will tell you there is nothing to it but the kid.

"How is he going to fight, this time?"
"Same old way—using both hands and his head," says Harry, and when you think that over there's more in that than would appear at first glance.

The kid is the favorite, of course, notwithstanding the weight, and Mr. James Edward Britt, of San Francisco, will have to do more work than he ever did before to get his hand on the winner's end of the purse.

Here is what Britt says about the contest:

"I have had an idea for a long time that Young Corbett would be easy picking for the man with the right kind of a wallop, and in my opinion I am the man."

"As a matter of course, I have figured out the way in which I can beat Corbett, but it is not my intention to explain for his benefit just what my plan of battle may be. But I don't mind telling what, in my opinion, are his weak points, and where, in a general way, I have some advantage over him."

"In the first place, I have had the pleasure of seeing Young Corbett fight here, and he has nothing on me in that line, although he sat at the ringside when I beat Martin Canole."

"I know just what are Corbett's best blows and I have studied out ways to block or avoid them, and to render them innocuous by planting counters where they will do the most good."

"Corbett has a great right hand. He walloped Hanlon with that in good style, just as he did Terry McGovern. That isn't to say that he is going to have any lead-pipe clinch landing it on me. I have just the kind of a style to fight a man with a good right hook. Martin Canole is about as clever as they come in small packages, and anybody who sat at the ringside will tell you that he have taken a tumble trying to find out how I do it. I bend over a little and draw my left shoulder up so that my deltoid covers my chin. My left hand is stuck out where it will do the most good, and I have my right poised ready to cut loose a wallop whenever I get an opening."

"They can't get at my chin with the right, and so I've got that famous punch of Corbett's 'coppered.' Canole got at me once in a while by shifting and bringing his left up into my ribs, and he hit me a few thousand times on the forehead, but he had about as much chance to find my chin as one of these explorer guys has to locate the North Pole. And the only time he landed in my abdominal regions was when he used the shift."

"I'm glad Corbett saw that fight. It may make him try to fight cleverly, and I like those clever fellows."

"As for hitting Corbett, I won't have to get any red and blue ringed target painted on him. The way I size it up, it is as easy to hit him as it is for an engine on the railroad to hit a tunnel. He's no 'Spider' Kelly for getting out of the way."

"In fact, we fight a lot alike in some ways. There will be a lot of hitting in this fight before the count begins on one or the other of us, with me walking to my corner and listening to it. I expect to take some punching. A fellow has to take a lot of punches during a fight with any good man. Corbett is a hard little fellow, but he isn't any better at getting away with a wallop than I am."

"A lot of the wise guys are croaking about the weight being too light for me. Well, there's nobody that knows better than I do what weight I can fight strong at. I never made a specialty of going around and renting fences to paint signs on to tip off everything I know."

"Here's just one thing I will say about weights. Last and cough myself to death at 130 is welcome to his opinion, but I'd hate to have any opulent personal friends of mine fall into genteel poverty through entertaining that misconception of the facts."

"While I'm not inclined to furnish Young Corbett with any calf-bound volumes on the tactics I will use in the fight, I don't mind saying that I will carry the game to him."

"I won't be fighting much on the defensive unless he happens to catch me and puts me in trouble. Then I will use all the defensive work I know until I recover."

"But I have an idea in my head that I can mix it with Corbett on even terms at least. Like General Forrest in the civil war, I haven't had my buglers taught the call for retreat. I don't like to back up, and I have a notion that if any back steps are taken in this fight they will not be by me."

"I'm not handing out any secret when I say that I think the best thing to land on Corbett is a good wallop in the stomach. He has a hard jaw, and my hands are

SMALL TALK ABOUT BOXERS

Lively Gossip of Interest Concerning the Doings of the Fighters.

Tommy Feliz has been offered a match with Frankie Neil at San Francisco.

Bert Dorman is coming to America with Jack Bailey, a 140-pound English boxer.

Negotiations have been entirely cut off between George Dixon and Jem Bowker, the English rather small and delicate to use for bone crushers. But a few of the kind I presented to Frank Erne ought to satisfy him."

THREW UP THE SPONGE.

Young Moran pounded Eddie Curtin so lustily in their fight at New Haven, Conn., March 9, that the latter's seconds threw up the sponge in the seventh round. They fought before a private club composed of local business men and Yale students. This was their second meeting, and as Curtin was not satisfied with the outcome another battle was arranged to take place before the same club.

SWIMMING RECORDS SMASHED.

At the races of the Brookline (Mass.) Swimming Club on March 9, three records were smashed. Harry Le Moyne, of Harvard, made new figures in the 50-yard event, covering the distance in 27 1/5 seconds. The former record was 28 seconds. C. M. Daniels sliced five seconds off the 440-yard record, making a new mark of 6 minutes and 5 seconds. A. M. McCormick, in the plunge for distance, made 65 feet 7 inches. The previous record was 63 feet.

KNOCKED DRISCOLL OUT TWICE.

Fred Cooley and Jim Driscoll clashed at M'Gurn's handball court, Chicago, March 9, the first named winning with two knockouts. The pair came together like a pair of wildcats, and before they warmed up to their work Cooley dropped Driscoll for the full count. The sudden ending did not please the slim crowd present, and it demanded more fight for its money. Cooley was not averse to continuing, but it required considerable coaxing to induce Driscoll to again face the music. With threats that he would not receive a penny of the small purse offered, he agreed to take another whirl at Fred, with the result he was again toppled over for the count. The show was under the management of Harry Gilmore, who just stepped across the fifty-year line, having been born on March 9, 1854.

HALEY GOT HIS QUICK.

Abe Attell knocked out Patsy Haley in the fifth round before the Whittington Park A. C., Hot Springs Ark., March 9. Haley, although outclassed, fought gamely and kept trying to land a solid blow on his opponent.

Attell landed a right squarely on Haley's jaw in the opening round, which sent him to the mat for a count of seven and on arising a similar blow to the same spot sent him again to the floor. This time Haley arose at the count of six, but was very groggy.

Haley freshened up in the second round and in the third landed a hard right on Attell, which caused the latter to fight cautiously.

In the fourth Attell landed three hard lefts in succession on Haley's wind and the latter seemed distressed as he went to his corner.

After two minutes of fighting in the fifth round, Attell secured an opening and quick as a flash sent a right uppercut to the point of Haley's chin, which sent him to the floor in a heap.

AT SING SING PRISON

A Bold Convict Who Took to the Frozen Hudson River, But who was Shot in His Tracks.

GUARDS WHO DIDN'T HAVE THE NERVE TO SHOOT.

Some Details of the Famous Escape of Palliser and Roehl, Convicted Murderers, Who Broke Out of the Death Cells.

This is the last instalment of a series of stories by a long-term man in Sing Sing prison, who managed to keep track of the men who escaped, or tried to escape, from their confinement.

A bold, but foolhardy, attempt to escape was made on June 28, 1881. Jack Devine (a life man) and Jim McCabe (twenty years for burglary) were working with a gang that was building a new greenhouse immediately adjoining the south gate of the prison grounds. The two men suddenly caught up their picks and made a rush for the open passage to freedom when the gate was swung for an incoming team, and each man made a vicious stroke with his pick at the two officers on guard.

Devine missed his man's head by a hair, but the point of McCabe's weapon found its mark. Fortunately, the blow only grazed the officer's skull, though it laid him up in the hospital for a month's repairs. The two men were captured thirty minutes later, and they were condemned by all their fellow prisoners for such a ridiculous effort to get away.

It is a task for me to tell of the next escape from prison. The terrible circumstances made such an impression upon my mind as to be re-enacted in my dreams many a night after the day of the occurrence. It was the winter of 1881-82—an intensely cold winter. The Hudson was frozen from source to mouth and from its east to its west bank.

The morning of Jan. 15 was a charming one, the wind was from the Northwest, the air full of vigor for a lot of poor devils who had been locked up over night in a cell house that has no ventilation; the sun shone gloriously, making millions of diamonds on the river's ice as far as the eye could reach, and showing countless brilliants on the snow-capped mountains on the Hudson's western shore. A company of us had been selected to cut ice from the river that day, and we started out in the early morning.

All hands were in excellent humor, and the work proceeded merrily. The guards, as usual, carried rifles, but none contemplated the necessity of using them. Among our number was Frank Walsh, a great, raw-boned, red-haired fellow. His face could be only that of a sullen, cruel and desperate man. He was quarrelsome, and had been often punished for vicious attacks upon his fellow prisoners. He had been sentenced to twenty years for burglary in the first degree, and had served but four months.

Walsh had two pals, Paddy Watlick and Jim Snyder, the trio having worked together before coming to prison.

Most of us were working busily at cutting ice when we heard an officer cry, "Halt, or I'll shoot!" and when we hastily looked up from our work we saw Walsh, Watlick and Snyder running across the ice to the west side of the river. The fleeing men refused to obey the order to halt, and Walsh even turned round to make a gesture of derision.

Each guard threw his rifle to his shoulder. One of the officers was so greatly excited that when he tried to pull the trigger he fell quivering to the ice. As another guard was about to fire a dozen prisoners pretended to be slipping on the ice, and hustled him so that he slipped and fell. But the third guard was some distance from us and nearer to the fugitives. He took careful aim at the huge bulk of Walsh. It seemed to me a full two minutes after the rifle's report that Walsh, without slowing up a particle, fell prone upon his face. The other two men instantly halted and edged carefully back to the rest of the company.

The officer who shot the runaway was seized with trembling and flatly refused to go where the prisoner lay, out there on the ice. A number of us went out, under the surveillance of the guards, and Walsh's face was turned to the sky. He was stone dead, and his eyes reflected his last agony. I remember that the guard who fell to the ice from fear when he tried to shoot, said: "Thank God that I'm a coward."

The officer who did the shooting was not a bad sort, but he was so shunned by both his fellow officers and the prisoners that he soon afterward resigned and left the prison.

I had almost forgotten to tell of the attempt to escape by Charles Vincent and James Welsh, though the incident is not likely to be effaced from my memory. The details are unpleasant enough and I shall touch upon them as lightly as possible.

Vincent was a sixteen-year man, for burglary; Welsh covered with his pistol, warning him that he would shoot to kill if the officer made the slightest sound. In his cramped position, however, Vincent was at a disadvantage that Post quickly realized, and the latter started to run for assistance. Instantly the report of the revolver rang out and Post fell to the floor, wounded severely in the leg.

But Vincent was caged. Sixteen officers, with their rifles hurried to the scene, and sixteen bullets went in the body of the man wedged in the window. Better dead. His sufferings for his act would have been a thousand times worse than the death-dealing bullets.

Welsh, meanwhile, had run toward the depot, but before he got outside the prison grounds he stumbled over a ditch and broke one of his legs. A bullet from a rifle broke the other, and he was brought back to his cell, which now needed no lock to hold safely the occupant.

I shall end my story with only a few words about the escape of Thomas Palliser and Frank Roehl on the 20th day of April, 1893, an adventure that was fatal to both.

The two men had been condemned to death for the crime of murder in the first degree, and were awaiting execution. The death cells had one other occupant, Carlisle Harris. The three men were guarded by two officers, James Hulse and James Murphy.

At 7 o'clock Roehl requested Hulse to warm some coffee for him. Hulse willingly consented, and after the drink was hot he took it to Roehl's cell, opened the door and passed into the iron-bound room with the prisoner. Instantly the condemned man threw himself upon the officer, carrying him to the floor and backing him up against the door of Palliser's cell. Palliser then pushed his hands through the bars and caught Hulse by the arms, pinioning them behind the guard's back, Roehl taking the keys and revolver from the officer's person. Roehl now opened Palliser's cell and the two men hurled Hulse into one of the vacated compartments, locking the heavy iron door upon him.

and there was a story circulated that the sailors of a passing vessel took the men, as they attempted to board their ship, for river thieves and killed them.

[There has always been a doubt in the minds of a great many persons concerning the end of Palliser and Roehl, and not a few believe that the bodies which were subsequently found were not those of the two men who had cheated the death chair.—Ed.]

BOTHNER'S BOWLING ALLEY.

George Bothner, lightweight champion wrestler, will open about April 15 one of the most modern bowling palaces in the city, known as the Pastime Bowling Palace, corner Eighty-fourth street and Third avenue, New York. The feature of the opening will be an interesting match game between John Plening and George Bothner.

JACK O'BRIEN OUTPOINTS SCHRECK

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien received the decision over Mike Schreck, of Cincinnati, after battling fifteen fast rounds at the West End A. C., St. Louis, Mo., March 10. With the exception of the second and last round the fight was all O'Brien's. Clarence A. Sahler, of the POLICE GAZETTE, describes the bout as follows:

In the second round Schreck landed two hard right swings on O'Brien as the latter was coming in. The Quaker was staggered for a moment, but soon recovered and continued to beat his opponent to a pulp. From the fifth round to the end Schreck devoted most of his time to getting close and clinging. He hung on at every chance, and had to be pried away from O'Brien by the referee.

O'Brien was on the aggressive at all times. He shot his left past Schreck's guard, and landed time after time on the face. Schreck could invent no way of avoiding these cutting blows, and was soon in distress.

The seventh round looked to be the last that the Cincinnati man would be able to fight. He was in a very bad way when the gong came to his rescue, and it was expected that his finish would come early in the next. It did not, however, for he recovered between rounds and was strong enough to hold fast to O'Brien at every chance.

Up to the fourteenth the carnage went on. Every round was O'Brien's, and Schreck had no chance. In the fifteenth Schreck made a last stand. He came out of his corner to do or die. He slammed away and roughed things, but he was up against the wrong man. His attempts to land a winning punch were set at naught by O'Brien, and when the bell ended the fight the Quaker had won by several miles.

WAS A DRAW.

George Decker, of Philadelphia, and Lew Ryall put up a fierce six-round battle at Lancaster, Pa., March 10, which was declared a draw. The fighting was furious at all times, and twice Ryall was saved from being counted out by the bell.

In the opening round the men went in as though each meant to win quickly. But most of the heavy hitting was wasted, as each blocked cleverly.

Lew wasted strength with some wild swinging, and Decker slipped and fell after a hard right swing. George had the better of the second round, but in the third Ryall got in some heavy jabs to the jaw. He in turn got a right swing to the jaw that staggered him.

In the fifth Lew received some staggering blows, and was groggy at the gong. The gong at the end of the sixth again saved him from a knockout.

In the preliminaries Nev. Campbell, of Lancaster, knocked out Kid McConnell, of Philadelphia, a minute after the first round opened. In the first round between C. Witsch and Elam Eisenberger, the latter was put to sleep.

Six fierce rounds were fought between Joe Hanrahan, of Lancaster, and Fred McFadden, of Philadelphia. Hanrahan was going when saved by the gong. Hanrahan was badly punished, while McFadden was not used up at all.

had five years, for grand larceny. The former had served three years of his term and the latter had been in prison but a little more than a year.

The night of Aug. 22 was an appallingly hot one, and there was much restlessness in the cells of the twelve hundred poor fellows who were housed in a space that is small enough to smother any human creature, even when the nights are cool. A sleepless night in Sing Sing prison is enough to drive a sane prisoner mad. He has no light by which he can read. He has but his past sins and his black future to dwell upon.

On the night in question I had not closed my eyes at half-past one o'clock, and was enduring all the horrors that a despairing man can know in his frightful helplessness. The sound of a pistol shot, therefore, had double effect upon my nerves. The report was followed by groans, by appeals for mercy, by curses, by a fusillade of rifle shots and then a dread quiet.

Vincent and Welsh had sawed the locks of their cells, and had run to the end of the gallery, forced aside the bar of a window and were almost at liberty, when a guard of the name of Post discovered them. Vincent threw himself upon the officer and took his revolver away from him, calling to his companion to force wider the bar in the window.

Welsh probably thought that he had made the window passage wide enough for Vincent's bulk to get through. At any rate, he jumped to the ground. Vincent was a large man and the window at best was small. He became wedged between the cross bar and the side of the window. He had all the time kept Post

At this stage the prisoners offered Harris the opportunity of joining them in their undertaking, but Harris refused.

Palliser and Roehl climbed to the top of the death house and cut a large hole in the roof. This done, they came down and calmly waited for Murphy, a guard, to come into the death chamber to enter upon his regular duties. Murphy did not make his appearance until half-past nine o'clock, an interval that must have been trying to the nerves of the desperate men. When Murphy finally entered the door he was confronted with a revolver and a heavy poker and was informed that if he made the slightest outcry he was a dead man. The officer kept his peace, and he, also, was locked in a vacant cell. Palliser and Roehl then said good-bye to Harris and disappeared through the hole in the roof.

The escape of the murderers was not discovered until a quarter before six the next morning, for the cry of the imprisoned officers could not be heard (if, indeed, they had the courage to call for help). During the night there had been a terrible storm, and when we awoke the next morning the water of the Hudson was rushing in torrents over the wharves and up into the prison yard. The elements were not the only evidence of excitement. The hunt was on for the escaped men, and every possible help was being utilized for their capture.

Every one knows how the bodies of both Palliser and Roehl were found in the river in the early part of the following May, each with a bullet in his brain and Roehl's skull fractured by a blow from some heavy instrument.

The bodies of both men were identified. Of course, there were numerous theories as to the manner in which they came to their death. The most plausible explanation is that they quarrelled and murdered each other, though many believed that both were suicides.

THE ARMY DRILL IS A MUSCLE BUILDER

If You Have Any Ideas on Physical Culture Write to This Paper About Them. If You Have a Good Photograph Showing Your Muscles Send it In.

SERIES NO. 63.

You don't want to think because some of the exercises in physical culture appear simple that they are valueless. There is an object in every movement, and some particular muscle is bound to be benefited. Bear in mind that you cannot make an athlete of and breathing exercises by Edward Ittmann, and then take up the army drill, which is now being published. By that time you will be well on the way towards making a man of yourself. Don't neglect this physical drill of the army, which is yourself in a few weeks, and that you will not be able to develop bulging muscles in a month, even though you may be well on the way.

The modern athlete only attains his perfect proportions as the result of interminable practice, not for hours at a time, bear in mind, but by simply keeping at it and never letting up.

Take five minutes whenever you can, which, if you have the inclination, you will find very often, and at the end of three months you will have accomplished wonders.

It isn't at all necessary that you should spend your time in a gymnasium, although it is good if you can; your own room, no matter how small it is, will answer the purpose if you have the inclination and the ambition.

The POLICE GAZETTE will be your teacher, and when you have taken two or three courses, you will find that you are a better man, physically, than you ever hoped to be.

But you will have to practice at every available opportunity, and put your mind on your work.

You can begin—if you haven't already done so—with Attila's five-pound dumb-bell exercise, than which there is no better, and which you can buy at this office in pamphlet form for ten cents, with two cents added for postage.

EXERCISE NO. 4.

This exercise will help the arms and strengthen the fingers and wrists.

Raise the arms as shown by the accompanying illustration, keeping them rigid. Then close the hands tightly as possible, after which open the hands, spreading the fingers as far apart as possible.

I am a subscriber to your paper, the POLICE GAZETTE, and I intend to take it as long as I live. I have gained wonderful results from Prof. Attila's exercises in your paper, as I took the five-pound dumb-bell exercises from start to finish, and I am taking the present exercises, which I think are great, and wherever I go in the future I will always have a good word for your paper.

THOMAS CARROLL,

Randsburg, Kern County, Cal.

I send you by this mail, under separate cover, eight photographs of myself. They were taken June 22, 1903. I have been following your instructions in the POLICE GAZETTE since your first lesson, and have improved my muscles wonderfully. Yours is the best system I have ever tried. Wish I had known of you several years ago. I have never used light dumb-bells before trying your system. It is a great muscle builder. I send you my measurements on separate sheet, and want you to tell me where I need development most, and if you think I can develop myself very much more? My calves are rather small in proportion to my arms, also my neck. I used tobacco in all its forms, also intoxicants to excess up to October, 1902. The reason I took up your system was to build up my run-down and worn-out body, which has improved so much I am a surprise to my friends. Let me know what I can do to improve myself to greater perfection. Wishing you great success, I am yours for health and strength, W. P. ROWLEY, 110 Lawrens Street, Greenville, S. C.

Your measurements are very good and fairly even, but don't stop. Your calves might be better developed, and they can be with the toe exercise. Keep up your course of light training and you will achieve wonderful results.

Those readers of the POLICE GAZETTE who have missed some of the five-pound dumb-bell exercises of Prof. Attila, will be glad to know that they have now been published in pamphlet form, and will be sent on the receipt of the price, 10 cents. Postage 2 cents extra.

PETER FELIX LOSES A DECISION.

Peter Felix, the heavyweight champion of Australia, and who is thought to be a second Peter Jackson, was robbed of a victory over Ruenaif, champion of New Zealand, in Melbourne recently. Felix had his man almost out in the sixteenth round, when the police stopped the fight and declared it a draw.

NO DECISION GIVEN.

There was a lively bout of ten rounds at the rooms of the Pastime Club, Portland, Me., March 7, between Belfield Walcott and Andy Watson, both of Boston. No decision was given. The men were about equally aggressive. Watson got in the greater number of clean blows, visiting Walcott's head frequently, especially in the closing rounds. Walcott several times forced Watson to the ropes and the fighting was almost continuous.

BOXING IN UTAH.

In the eighth round of a battle that was fierce from start to finish, Jack Clifford, of Butte, knocked out Tommy Markham, of Salt Lake, in that city recently. The men fought at 135 pounds.

Clifford used his head and let Markham wear himself out. The Butte boy's best blow was a hard left jab to the face, which he landed at will. Markham was put out with a left solar, followed by a right hook to the jaw just as he was falling.

BILLY WOODS WON HANDILY.

Billy Woods won from "Cyclone" Kelly in the fifth round of their go at the Sequoia Club, Oakland, Cal., March 8. The affair was farcical from the start, Kelly being unable or not caring to make even the semblance of a showing against the colored man. The latter apparently could have ended the bout at any time, but contented himself with occasionally punching his opponent after the first round, when the "Cyclone" was knocked down or fell to avoid punishment seven times.

Kelly did not attempt to land a blow, being on the defensive from the start. After the first round and until the fifth there was practically no fighting, Woods not following up his advantage. In the latter round he decided to end the mill and after three smashes to Kelly's jaw the latter's seconds threw up the sponge.

COLE PUT IT ALL OVER FOLEY.

For the second time inside of three weeks Harry Foley, of California, has been badly trounced by George Cole, of Trenton. In the first contest Foley was knocked out, in the second round, and at the Lenox A. C., Philadelphia, March 7, he came near going the voyage more than once. He managed to stay six rounds, but Cole showed himself to be the master of the situation at an early stage of the game.

Vernon Campbell gave Fred Vanuch, of Canada, a bad beating in the semi-final bout and won easily. The police stopped the Young Fitzsimmons-Joe White bout in the fifth round. Tom Murray was in no condition to fight Young Joe Grim, and the referee stopped the farce in the second round. Harry Farren lost to Kid Garrett.

TERRY'S BROTHER WHIPS LOVE.

In a rattling bout, bristling with action from end to end, Hughey McGovern bested Tommy Love in the windup at the National A. C., Philadelphia, March 5.

In the first two rounds Love held his own; in fact, he had a shade the better of the argument. In a mixup within twenty seconds of the end of the second round McGovern hit Love low. It was an accident, and the boys were sent to their corners. Love soon pulled himself together, however, and the bout was finished on scheduled time.

Beginning with the third round the bout was McGovern's. The latter was particularly effective at short range, and took liberties with Love that ordinarily might have got him in trouble. At out-work the local lad had all the better of it, but he seemed unable to withstand Hughey's furious rushes.

The preliminaries were all to the good. Kid Gilbert had a shade on Buck Kelly in the opening clash. The second bout was settled in almost record time, Jack Roller, of New York, stopping Joe Mace in one minute and ten seconds with a right hand swing on the jaw.

You can become an expert wrestler by following the instructions in George Bothner's new book published by the POLICE GAZETTE. Price, 25 cents; postage 4c. extra.

Kid Murphy, of New York, and Willie Gibbs went the route with little to choose between them at the finish. In the semi-windup, Cub White had several shades the better of Fred Vanuch.

FRANK GOTCH THROWS PERSON.

In the cleanest and most clever match ever seen in Tacoma, Wash., Frank A. Gotch, who defeated Tom Jenkins, threw Chris Person, of Tacoma, twice within an hour recently. He secured the first fall in 28 minutes and the second in 20, thus giving him 12 minutes' time to spare.

TIPMAN AND DALY DRAW.

Joe Tipman and Tommy Daly, of Brooklyn, fought a fifteen-round draw before the Eureka Athletic and Social Club, Baltimore, recently. The men had met on two previous occasions and Daly won both bouts, in two and one rounds respectively. As a result, when the men entered the ring Daly was a hot favorite.

THE GAME IN GLOUCESTER, MASS.

About 500 members gathered at the Gloucester (Mass.) A. C. to witness the boxing exhibition March 7. The main attraction was to have been between Sandy Ferguson, of Chelsea, and Walter Johnson, of Philadelphia, but owing to some disagreement in the choice of a referee, Ferguson would not go on and left the club.

In his place Steve O'Donnell boxed eight rounds with Johnson and partially satisfied a disappointed crowd. No decision was given.

In the first preliminary between Kid Lenney, of Providence, and Young Carter, of Chelsea, six rounds, at 105 pounds, Lenney quit in the second round. The second preliminary was between Charley Beaton, of West Gloucester, and Tom Connelly, of Gloucester. The first round was fast and furious, but in the second Connelly put his opponent to the bad and won easily. This also was a case of quit.

BOTHNER AND TREMBLAY DRAW.

Eugene Tremblay, the Canadian champion wrestler, proved a big surprise at the Polo A. C., New York, March 7, when he wrestled George Bothner, world's champion lightweight and author of the "Police Gazette Book on Wrestling," two hours to a draw, neither gaining a fall.

The conditions of the match were best two in three falls, catch-as-catch-can. Bothner's backers looked for him to win easily, but the Canadian had little trouble in holding the champion off. Although the contest was to have been to a finish, it was stopped after the wrestlers had passed the midnight hour.

Both men were still strong and evenly matched, and

It was evident that a fall was far off, so it was decided to call the contest a draw, a decision which was well received.

Tremblay, although competing against the best man of his weight in the world, held his own at every stage of the game. At times he appeared to have a shade the better of the New Yorker, but Bothner's wonderful skill came to his rescue at all times.

YOUNG CORBETT AND BRITT

—WEIGHT AND ODDS FAVOR THE DENVERITE—

READY FOR THEIR FIGHT

Kid McCoy Starts His Campaign with Herr Placke and is Negotiating with Fitzsimmons and Corbett.

MUNROE SHOWS DECIDED IMPROVEMENT IN FORM.

May Resume Boxing at Fort Erie—Australian Jimmy Ryan's Luck—Ruhlin Finds Jeffords a Hard Game—Small Gossip.

Everything indicates a lively battle when Young Corbett and Jimmy Britt, the Pacific Coast fighter, get into the ring to go twenty rounds in San Francisco, on March 25. Britt carries the title of lightweight champion of the Pacific Coast and under the conditions of the present match it is difficult to say whether Britt is going out of his class to meet a champion or Corbett, the champion, is stepping into harder game by going out of his rightful division. They have agreed to weigh 131 pounds at 6 o'clock, a weight which suits Corbett to a nicety, while it may give the Californian not a little trouble. At any rate, it is the first time Corbett has shown an inclination to emulate the example set by the man he took the title away from, Terry McGovern, and go into the business of trying to drag lightweights down to his own level.

Undoubtedly there will be any amount of betting on the result of the meeting, and it is likely Corbett will maintain his present position and go into the ring strong first choice, despite the fact that Britt is a native son and a strong favorite in San Francisco and all over California. Corbett has shown the followers of the game in the West so much in the way of great battling that they are finally impressed with the idea that he is a sure enough champion. He started off his good work by giving Terry McGovern a sound thrashing and then followed this up with handy victories over Eddie Hanlon and Dave Sullivan.

The boys are a good deal alike in style, both being aggressive and two-handed. Up to date, however, Britt has not shown any great hitting power. He has not been doing any clean knocking out, although he has beat opponents down and earned decisions, showing great endurance and ability to stand punishment. Britt has been fighting most of his battles at 133-135, and this match with Corbett is at 131. This is surely in Corbett's favor, and when he enters the ring for this clash he will be found stronger and better than ever before. It looks to the man up a tree as if Corbett's chances are good. It will be a cyclonic battle to look at, however, and both lads will have to take some punches. It will probably be a mixing, slam-bang fight from start to finish and Corbett, being known to have a knockout punch, is likely to catch Jimmy in a rally and put him away. If the contest goes the limit it will probably be a draw. If there is a knockout Corbett will probably be the one to execute the trick.

Assuming that Corbett defeats Britt, and the assumption is a fair one, at least, Corbett will be in line for a try for the world's lightweight championship. Corbett realizes that he is growing all the time and that he must soon graduate into the lightweight class, where he will be in his true class.

Kid McCoy evidently doesn't believe he is in very much danger of defeat at the hands of Herr Placke, the big Hollander, whom he is matched to fight six rounds in Philadelphia, for he is negotiating for a battle of the orthodox kind with Bob Fitzsimmons. McCoy is very eager and sincere in his efforts to bring about a match with the ex-champion, which is said for the first time in the Hoosier's career in the ring. In years past McCoy was a very clever ring general and would slip in and out of an engagement like a mouse. But McCoy, with Johnny Considine, who is acting as the Kid's financial man, are eagerly seeking the Cornishman and will endeavor to have him sign articles.

The bout, if arranged, will probably be decided a few weeks previous to the big mill between Munroe and Jeffries in San Francisco. A large purse probably amounting to $15,000 or somewhere in that neighborhood will in all probabilities be offered, and the fighters will grab onto the same at a moment's notice. It will be a meeting between "has-beens" and at that the mill should be interesting.

Jack Munroe is "packing 'em to the doors" in the big New York vaudeville houses, and with his sparring partner, old Peter Burns, is giving a really clever exhibition of boxing. His present showing is really a revelation to his most ardent admirers. The power that brought about the wonderful change in Munroe from the rough-and-ready fighter to the clean-cut boxer in such a short space of time was Kid McCoy, one of the greatest fighters of the ring to-day, so far as cleverness is concerned.

To McCoy is given all the glory for Munroe's rapid improvement, and the latter does not hesitate to give the Hoosier boxer credit for his invaluable assistance. Taking Munroe, a rough diamond as it were in pugilism, McCoy in a remarkably short space of time developed him into a finished boxer. Possessed of a fine physique and the other essentials necessary to the successful heavyweight, Munroe proved an adept pupil, and when he met Sharkey he lost no time in bringing into execution his many new blows impressed upon him.

In all likelihood McCoy will accompany Munroe to San Francisco when the latter goes to train for his bout with Jeffries. This will insure Munroe being in the finest possible condition and still further improved as a boxer when he faces the champion.

We New Yorkers, whose morals are so ably looked after by our representatives at the State's capital that we would be in danger of corruption if they permitted us to gaze upon a pair of boxing gloves encasing the hands of a well-trained, muscularly-equipped exponent of the manly art, are rooting for boxing to be resumed at Fort Erie, a little place in Canada "just across from Buffalo." Urgent appeals from prominent sporting men of Buffalo are being made to the Canadian authorities to let the pugilistic game continue, and that nothing but boxing exhibitions and no "prize fights" will be the order. The authorities are considering the same, and it may be that boxing will once again hold the reins in the small Canadian town.

Fort Erie is about the best fighting center in the East. When the game was stopped last year, bouts between the leading boxers of the various divisions were being pulled off with great regularity, and it was a big blow to Buffalo sports when the authorities got up in arms and told Manager Jack Herman that he must give up pugilism in Fort Erie in the hereafter. Now talk of bringing about a few important big matches is current, and whether or not the authorities will consent to such action is not known, but in all probability objections will be held by the Canadians.

All the way from Hot Springs, "Arkansaw," as they say in the Ozark Valley, comes the details of a battle which "Australian Jimmy" Ryan, the pugilist, and his cousin George, had with the "tiger," which resulted in a clean up of considerably more than $20,000. This lucky streak came after a winter of constant losing, when the "boys" were almost groggy and on the ropes.

The pugilist began to play with $50 and he won the first turn out of the box. Two hundred dollars of what was returned to him he tossed over to Cousin George, with a suggestion that George go to the roulette wheel and see if this was the Ryan family's day.

with a green bundle—wrapper of $1,000 and filler of $2,300. Clearly it was the Ryan's day, though Cousin George didn't play any more. He just stood around and watched Jimmy gather in the ivory output of the last two years, barring what was made into billiard balls.

By sun-up, when some of the spectators complained of being sleepy and yet unwilling to go to bed, so fascinated were they by the pleasing sight, Ryan said he'd quit and give the porter a chance to sweep out. Calling Cousin George and one or two particular cronies, they ordered breakfast and then started out to put the money into circulation.

They looked up every broken-down old sport in town and staked him liberally. If by chance the subject had ever been a prize fighter he got $50, where the other fellow got $10. All a dead one had to do to grip a half-century note was to mumble something about having been in the ring himself.

Inquiring Reader.—No, it wasn't Tommy Ryan, he never gave away anything in his life!

Looks as if Gus Ruhlin was on his way to the rear division. Jim Jeffords helped him back a little the other night when he beat him in one of those Philadelphia six-round-no-decision-leave-it-to-the-audience affairs. It was a fight all right, though, from the start.

The first blow was a right full swing on the jaw that sent the Akron giant down for five seconds. Getting at it again, Jeffords rained rights and lefts all over Gus, who went to his knees and took the count. Ruhlin showed good judgment during the remainder of the round by keeping Jeffords off with straight lefts. In that way he lasted out the round.

He was more cautious in the second, and Jeffords had trouble in getting at him. In the third Jeffords tried hard, and while he had the better of the round he was unable to do much damage. In the fourth Gus showed well with his left and had something on Jim, but in the last two rounds Jeffords again stepped to the front and well earned the decision.

After the first round Ruhlin fought much on the defensive and Jeffords found all kinds of trouble in getting his right swing over effectively to the face. He then tried jabbing with his left and in the fourth round he had Ruhlin's nose bleeding profusely. These tactics cost many a punch on the body that did him no good.

Tom Jenkins, the American all-round wrestler, has changed his base of operations to England, where the grappling game is now very much in vogue. It has taken the place of boxing in the estimation of the sporting gentry, and matches for big money are frequently decided. The fact that boxing and wrestling are now rivals for popular favor has excited considerable comment and comparison. I was, the other day, greatly interested in what an Englishman, Thomas Denny, an officer in His Majesty's army, had to say on the subject. Mr. Denny began by remarking that, while the wrestler may possess greater muscular strength, he may not be blessed with that keen perception and agility which are the prerogatives of your really clever boxer.

"And since brains are admittedly the chief factor in the performance of a difficult task," said Mr. Denny, "so a boxer's fist will be directed to any portion of the wrestler's body with far greater rapidity than will the latter's hand when trying for a hold. The wrestler's arms, too, are usually extended in a curved position as he moves forward for a grip, and this attitude is invariably in favor of the other, while a wrestler is seldom or never able to step back or retreat on the instant. The boxer's normal attitude makes him, on the other hand, instantly ready for either attack or defense, always assuming that he is clever on his feet and that he fully understands the value of the slightest movement. The boxer's footwork must, it goes without saying, be superb, and his feints and slipping of the highest degree of science. If he adopts punching and guarding tactics with either hand, the wrestler must stand off. The rush by the wrestler for a hold certainly requires very skillful evasive tactics on the part of the fighter. He must therefore train his feet and his eyes to perfection. He must also remember that his greatest strength is best demonstrated when he is on guard or in his defensive attitude. For although he may not be as strong bodily as the wrestler, it is in this attitude that the clever boxer is usually at his best. The secret is to be first, either in the ring or in a street row."

In the course of a published interview the other day Philadelphia Jack O'Brien said: "I would like to win the middleweight title before I quit the game, and if whipping Fitzsimmons will get me an engagement with Ryan I will clean up both of them. Ryan is not a hard proposition. I found his game easy from the start."

O'Brien evidently has a bad memory. Ryan had him beaten within an inch of his life, while Fitz considers him, pugilistically speaking, beneath his notice. So much for "cleaning up both of them."

JENKINS TOO MUCH FOR PIENING.

Tom Jenkins and John Piening, the champion Græco-Roman wrestler, appeared on the mat at Sulzer's Harlem River Casino, New York city, March 11. Jenkins threw Piening in the first bout, which was catch-as-catch-can, the time being 28 minutes and 10 seconds of fast wrestling. He might have carried off the honors in the second bout if the timekeeper had not called time after the men had been wrestling a half hour. The condition of the match was that the men should wrestle in this bout for one hour, and Jenkins had the better of the second bout, Græco-Roman style, when Piening's manager entered the ring to try to explain the time conditions of the articles. The referee, Florrie Barnett, declared the match unfinished.

SOME LATE CHALLENGES.

Billy Drummond, of Brentwood, Mo., would like to meet any amateur boxer at 118 pounds for a trophy.

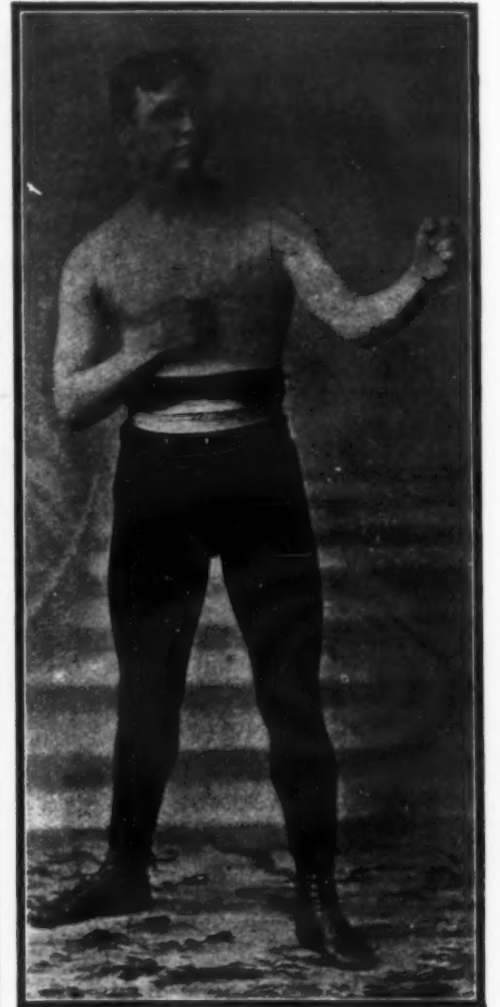

Here is a chance for some of the lively bell boys to compete with Jim Fletcher, a favorite at the Demopolis Inn at Demopolis, Ala. Fletcher has a record of answering fifty-two bells in an hour, and when answering calls would make any of the sprinters hustle to keep pace with him.

Eddie Daly, the Baltimore boxer, has sent a challenge to the POLICE GAZETTE to meet Abe Attell at 122 pounds, and will make a side bet of $500 that he can defeat the Westerner. Daly has been obliged to meet men much heavier than himself in order to get matches, and has concluded hereafter to stay in the 122-pound class, at which weight he has done well.

OWEN MORAN THE PREMIER

British Champion Coming to This Country to Fight.

Bert Dorman, an American pugilistic promoter, is bringing to this country Owen Moran, the bantam champion of England and one of the most consistent and sterling little fighters in the world. Moran first saw the light of day in Birmingham, a city which produced Tom and Harry Allen, Charley Mitchell, Billy Edwards, Denver Ed Smith, Charley Norton, Billy

OWEN MORAN, Bantam Champion of England.

Plimmer and many other noted fighters who have made reputations in the United States. He was born on October 4, 1884, stands 5 feet 3½ inches and scales, in condition, 112 pounds. He started boxing in the fall of 1900, when he was unearthed by Harry E. Cleveland, the well-known English referee and sporting writer, who was engaged in journalistic work in New York in 1890-91, and was the Birmingham representative of the English edition of the POLICE GAZETTE.

The now famous bantamweight was discovered when engaged in a novice's 116-pound competition, and although conceding as much as twenty-four pounds to some of his opponents won easily by knocking out each of his men.

He had for his first opponent for a stake money "Digger" Stanley, who has defeated, although conceding weight, such men as Pedlar Palmer, George Dixon and other noted glove performers. Moran was too finely drawn and stale as the result of bad training, but in a match for $50 a side put up a fine fight, and although losing on points secured a lot of admirers. He next beat Harry Slough, a clever Londoner, at Leicester in fifteen rounds. He celebrated his debut at the National Sporting Club, London, by giving eight and one-half pounds in weight and a beating in ten rounds to Harold Root.

The members of the club were so pleased with his showing that he quickly had another fight there. This time with Charley Smirks, who was placed hors de combat in the fourth round. Also at the National Sporting Club he defeated Jem Kendrick, of Hackney, in ten rounds, and Johnny Hughes, of Bloomsbury, in nine rounds.

In order to get on a match with Fred Herring, an amateur champion of England, Moran reduced himself fully two pounds under his proper weight and was outpointed in a ten-round contest. All efforts on the part of the backers of the Birmingham boy to bring about a second meeting between the pair failed. Moran then knocked out Jack Morris, a clever little London Jew boxer, at Bert A. Dorman's Coronation Gymnasium, Liverpool. He subsequently beat, in quick succession, Jim Glover in two rounds, Jack Daly in three rounds and Tom King in ten rounds. His next appearance at the National Sporting Club resulted in a win over Ernie Moody in seven rounds. He knocked out Bob Kendrick in six rounds, at "Wonderland," London, and subsequently disposed of Dave Jobs, of London, in eight rounds in Jem Curran's gymnasium in Birmingham. At the National Sporting Club he beat Jack Walker, of Paddington, in fifteen rounds, for the 112-pound championship of England. He was matched a second time with Digger Stanley for the 114-pound championship of England, at the National Sporting Club, and lost the verdict. The decision gave great dissatisfaction to the great majority of those who witnessed the fight. In the last round some excellent judges on the spot bet 5 to 1 that Moran would have the decision. The verdict was said to be the worst given at the club. Several American sporting men who have seen Moran fight consider him a tip-top performer with the gloves and resembling in style Terry McGovern. He is very speedy and can hit tremendously hard for his size. Although his ancestors for several generations back belonged to Birmingham, little Moran possesses many of the characteristics of the Irish race from which he has sprung. He is full of sparkling wit, is capital company and a well-behaved little fellow.

Generoso Gensaldi is a young tonsorialist at present employed in the "Police Gazette" barber shop at 338 Pearl street, New York City. He is an artist with the razor and shears, and handles them with more skill than many having much more experience, and shaves many of the sporting fraternity that frequent the POLICE GAZETTE.

GOLD MEDALS FOR BARBERS.

It will not be very long now before there will be three "Police Gazette" champion barbers and each one will be wearing a gold medal.

There is yet time to enter the contest, so hurry in before the doors are shut.

Here are the prizes:

First Prize—$75.00 gold medal to the man who lathers and shaves the greatest number of men in 30 minutes.

Second Prize—$50.00 gold medal for the quickest and most artistic hair cut, military style, using scissors and comb only.

Third Prize—$25.00 for the quickest single shave, the contestant to do the lathering.

LETTERS RECEIVED,

I have received your premium boxing gloves and they are far better than I expected. I am a barber and have been in business since I was a schoolboy. In London in 1891 I shaved twelve men in twenty-nine minutes.

WM. J. SPAAN,

Thirty-fourth Street and Seventh Ave., New York.

I have been a subscriber to the GAZETTE for years and I am proud to enter a contest like yours. I have a record for a hair cut that is hard to beat. I would only be too glad to hear from you before the contest is up. Don't forget to send me entry blanks.

HUGO F. RECKMANN,

222 Ninety-second Street, South Chicago, Ill.

I beg to announce, in reference to your tonsorial contest which is now going on under your supervision, that I would like to be counted in among the competitors.

On Saturday, Feb. 16, in the presence of three persons, a timekeeper and judge, I lathered a man, stropped the razor and shaved him, and also combed his hair; this was done in one minute and fifty-six seconds. Don't fail to take into consideration the stropping of the razor and combing his hair.

I believe that I can still beat the record for shaving thirty men, and hope you will give me an opportunity to do so. Below you will find the names of the timekeeper and witnesses. Started at 1.58 p. m. and finished at 1.59.58. Time occupied 1 min. 56 sec.

NICHOLAS MUTE,

362 Bushwick Av., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Timekeeper, David Goldberg, 369 Bushwick Av.

Man who was shaved, Michael Wagner.

Witnesses, Joseph Caklanotto, Kid Bernstein, and Silverman.

SYPHILIS

FACTS of Vital Importance to Every Sufferer From Syphilis

FACT ONE—It takes time to tell whether you are permanently cured by a treatment, or merely patched up for the present.

FACT TWO—The Cook Remedy Co. is the only company or medical association in existence that has been treating Syphilis long enough to know that its patients are cured to stay cured.

FACT THREE—The Cook Remedy Co. has many patients who were cured by its magic remedy eighteen years ago, who are today sound and well.

FACT FOUR—Many patients that were cured by the Cook Remedy Co. eighteen years ago now have children grown to manhood and womanhood in perfect health and without a blemish.

FACT FIVE—Good health is the most

FACT SIX—Patients cured by Cook Remedy Co. are constantly passing successfully the very rigid examinations of the most conservative life insurance companies, and are passing the examinations for admission to the army and navy of the United States.

FACT SEVEN—If you take Cook Remedy Co.'s treatment under their guarantee you are absolutely sure of a cure or your money back.

FACT EIGHT—Every other method of treatment known to the medical profession gives but temporary relief.

FACT NINE—The Cook Remedy Co. is the largest and the only successful company in the world that makes the cure of Syphilis a specialty.

ABOVE NINE FACTS ARE ABSOLUTELY UNDENIABLE.

The Cook Remedy Co. solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case they cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. (For many years the Cook Remedy Co. have made a specialty of treating this disease, and they have unlimited capital behind their unconditional guaranty.

You can be treated at home for the same price and with the same guaranty. With those who prefer to go to Chicago the Cook Remedy Co. will contract to cure them or pay railroad and hotel bills and make no charge if they fail to cure.

SYPHILIS begins usually with a little blister or sore, then swelling in the groins, a red eruption breaks out on the body, sores and ulcers appear in the mouth, the throat becomes ulcerated, the hair, eyebrows and lashes fall out, and as the blood becomes more contaminated, copper-colored spots and pustular eruptions and sores appear upon different parts of the body, and the poison even destroys the bones.

The Cook Remedy Co. has a specific for this loathsome disease, and cures it even in its worst form. It is a perfect antidote for the powerful virus that pollutes the blood and penetrates to all parts of the system. Unless you get this poison out of your blood it will ruin you and bring disgrace and disease upon your children, for it can be transmitted from parent to child.

Write for the Cook Remedy Co.'s free home treatment book and learn all about Syphilis. If you want medical advice give a history of your case, and their physicians will furnish all the information you wish without any charge whatever.

Your salvation depends on Cook Remedy Co., and on them alone. They will surely cure you. No other method of treatment will cure you.
